

CLASSICAL LANGUAGES: ANCIENT GREEK AND LATIN
Spring 2006

GREEK 1113. ELEMENTARY CLASSICAL GREEK I (Alternate Fall Semesters)

(This course will be offered in the Fall 2006 semester.)

If you have had absolutely no Greek before; if you've never studied any language before, this is the place to start. You will begin from the beginning to learn the vocabulary and grammar of ancient Greek, the same language used by Homer, Plato and the New Testament writers. To get a good start in the language, you should also plan on taking Greek 1223 the following semester.

GREEK 1223. ELEMENTARY CLASSICAL GREEK II (Alternate Spring Semesters)

(This course will be offered in the Spring 2007 semester.)

Prerequisite: Greek 1113 or equivalent.

A continuation of Greek 1113.

GREEK 2113. ELEMENTARY CLASSICAL GREEK III (Alternate Fall Semesters)

(This course will be offered in the Fall 2007 semester.)

Prerequisite: Greek 1223 or equivalent.

You will finish learning the grammar of Ancient Greek. Completion of this course satisfies the A & S Foreign Language requirement.

GREEK 2213. INTERMEDIATE READINGS (Alternate Spring Semesters)

1 MWF 2:30 p.m.-3:20 p.m. GU 105 Epstein

Prerequisite: 2113 or equivalent.

The Apology by Plato is read during this semester.

FLL 4000. SPECIAL STUDIES IN FOREIGN LANGUAGE: GREEK

351 TBA Epstein

Prerequisite: Greek minor or equivalent.

For anyone who desires special coursework beyond the level of a minor and would like to pursue topics in literature and philosophy. Contact instructor before enrolling in this course.

LATIN 1113. ELEMENTARY LATIN I (Alternate Fall Semesters)

(This course will be offered in the Fall 2007 semester.)

If you have never had Latin or any other language before; if you've tried before but have not gotten very far, this is where you start. You will begin from zero to learn the vocabulary and grammar of ancient Latin, the language of Julius Caesar, Marcus Tullius Cicero and Catullus. To get a good start in the language, you should also plan on taking Latin 1223 the following semester.

LATIN 1223. ELEMENTARY LATIN II (Alternate Spring Semesters)

1 MWF 11:30 a.m.-12:20 p.m. GU 105 Epstein

Prerequisite: Latin 1113 or equivalent.

You will continue the grammar that you began in 1113.

LATIN 2113. ELEMENTARY LATIN III (Alternate Fall Semesters)

(This course will be offered in the Fall 2006 semester.)

Prerequisite: Latin 1223 or equivalent.

You will complete the grammar and begin to read Latin authors. Completion of this course satisfies the A & S foreign language requirement.

LATIN 2213. INTERMEDIATE READINGS (Alternate Spring Semesters)

(This course will be offered in the Spring 2007 semester.)

Prerequisite: Latin 2113 or equivalent.

Book I of Virgil's Aeneid is read during this semester.

LATIN 3330. ADVANCED READINGS IN LATIN

TBA

GU 306D

Epstein

Prerequisite: Latin 2213.

This is a small class in which the students and the teacher choose the texts to be read together. Please contact the professor during the preceding semester to arrange schedule, books, etc.

FLL 4000. SPECIAL STUDIES IN FOREIGN LANGUAGE: LATIN

355 TBA

Epstein

Prerequisite: Latin minor or equivalent.

For anyone who desires special coursework beyond the level of a minor and would like to pursue topics in poetry, history and theology. Contact instructor before enrolling in this course.